

Course Title: Terminología Especializada en Jurídica
Program and Track: Interpretación y Traducción: 7° Cuatrimestre
Course ID: IT0732
Cohort ID: 7A

Description

This course uses a constructivist approach for advanced English language learning with an emphasis on terminology. The specialized jargon, terminology and acronyms that are used in law will be examined and framed through the context of legal systems, legal research, and selected legal documents in Mexican law and international law. Foundational concepts for legal systems will be reviewed along with the form and function of legal language. Selected topics in civil law and current international will be introduced, and the analysis and evaluation of legal documents, legal texts, and open-access journal articles and reviews will provide the context for vocabulary building and English language acquisition. Selected English grammatical structures and writing styles will be reviewed, and translations between English and Spanish will be routine.

The professional translational mapping tools developed in this course will be specific to Spanish and English translations, although such tools and methodologies can readily be extended to the translation of other languages. Students will receive credit for any work completed through the Coursera on-line learning platform.
